Feedback from Peer 1

Do cellphones help or hurt student learning? Maybe!

Do cellphones help or hurt student learning? I thy is used. This is the point I will argue in this essay, hopefully quite persuasively.

First I'd like to talk about another technology that was likely a big part of your life when you were young. That technology is television. Did television help or hurt your learning? Well, I expect that some kids only ever watched junk television. They watched shows about nothing, maybe just music videos or silly comedies that didn't include educational information. But other kids might have watched documentaries, or nature shows, or even Sesame Street. The television probably hurt the first group of students, but helped the second group.

I think many parents and other old people think that we young people just use phones for

Do cellphones help or hurt student learning? Maybe both!

Do cellphones help or hurt student learning? I think the answer to this is clear, and the answer is ... it depends! Like almost everything in life, some new technology is just that, a new technology. Whether it is good or bad with respect to some other thing depends on how that technology is used. This is the main point I will argue in this essay.

First I'd like to talk about another technology that was likely a big part of your life when you were young. That technology is television. Did television help or hurt your learning? Well, I expect that some kids only ever watched meaningless television. They watched shows about nothing, maybe just music videos or silly comedies that didn't include educational information. But other kids might have watched documentaries, or nature shows, or even Sesame Street. The television probably hurt the first group of students, but helped the second group.

I think many parents think that we young people just use cellphones for conversations that are meaningless. That we only talk about who likes who, or what clothes we're going to wear tomorrow. Of course we do talk about things like that, just like everyone watches some meaningless TV, but that isn't all we do. Sometimes we talk about school work, about assignments

How did receiving feedback help you improve your assignment?

I found that all the comments were quite useful. They were not afraid of holding back what they thought and hurting my feelings, which is good. Their suggestions are very helpful and now looking back at what I wrote, their advice will probably make my essay a lot better. I choose to include all the feedback because they all had useful advice.
